THE HISTORIC LANDSCAPE

TUESDAY NIGHT SPEAKER SERIES: 2022

Join us the second Tuesday of each month at 6:30 p.m.

1490 Agency House Road, Portage, WI | FREE admission

Kathie Crowley Conn

Biographer, author, educator, and place-based education advocate

June 14 | Juliette Kinzie: A Chronicler of Cultures on the Historic Landscape

Juliette Kinzie traveled from high-society New England to the territorial wilderness in 1830. A keen observer of cultures, societal roles, and social relationships, Kinzie chronicled her adventures and experiences with a special interest in the lives and relationships of those around her.

Tracey Lee Roberts

Executive Director, Grant County Historical Society; Senior Lecturer Emerita, UW-Platteville

July 12 | The Old Lead Mine District: A Flash Point on the Cultural Landscape

Native and métis peoples of many nations actively mined ore in the old Upper Mississippi Lead Mine District before miners of diverse backgrounds flooded into the region in the early 19th century to vie for the extensive galena deposits. The Lead District became a critical scene of conflict which touched off a dramatic transformation of the cultural and physical landscape.

Matt Blessing

Retired State Archivist and Division Administrator, Wisconsin Historical Society

August 9 | Reading the Landscape: Aldo Leopold's Use of History

Conservation legend Aldo Leopold purported that an ecological analysis of the landscape is essential to understanding the past. Human interaction with the land may help explain root causes of dramatic and sweeping events in human history, including those which played out right here at the Fox-Wisconsin portage.

Patrick J. Jung

Professor of History and Anthropology, Milwaukee School of Engineering

September 13 | Eyewitnesses: Early Explorers of the Fox-Wisconsin Corridor

Immerse yourself in the historic landscape through the eyes of early travelers and explorers of Wisconsin who left firsthand accounts of what they saw. Dr. Jung opens up intriguing vistas featuring the people, places, and cultural complexities of centuries past from the perspectives of those who were there.
